

CENTENNIAL OF SURRENDER DETROIT, MICH.

Passing of Territory to English Marked First Important Event in War of 1812

DETROIT, Mich., Aug. 16.—One hundred years ago today the city of Detroit, and with it the entire territory now comprised in the state of Michigan, was surrendered to General Hull by the British army in command of Sir Isaac Brock. The surrender was the first important event in the war of 1812 between the United States and Great Britain.

General Hull was governor of the territory of Michigan when the war began. He was appointed to the command of the army of the north-west, with instructions to invade Canada. This was to be the first important military movement of the war, and nobody in the United States doubted that it would be crowned with success. The invasion was to be through the western border on the Detroit river.

General Hull took command of an army of volunteers at Dayton, O., in May, 1812. Soon after he received a message from the war department ordering him to march speedily to Detroit and await orders there. When he reached the Maumee river he embarked his baggage and stores on several small vessels. At this time he did not know that war had been declared, but the British commander knew it, and when the vessels arrived near Port Malden, they were captured with all their valuable freight.

Early in July General Hull reached Detroit, and found the British on the other side of the river throwing up intrenchments. In a few days the American commander received orders to advance, and immediately crossed his troops over to the Canadian side of the river. The army advanced toward Malden successfully, but suddenly felt back, and hearing that large British forces were coming, General Hull crossed the Detroit river again and established himself in the fort.

The British followed and prepared to attack the fort. His troops were ready and anxious to fight, but with but offering any resistance, General Hull surrendered the fort, the army and the territory of Michigan. The American forces were estimated at about 2,000 men. These, with 2,500 stands of arms, 30 pieces of ordnance and 40 barrels of gunpowder, were delivered to the British.

General Hull was later summoned to a court martial, which found him guilty of cowardice and sentenced him to death. The sentence of death was not executed, but he was dropped from the army rolls. In the course of time, General Hull's conduct met with vindication in the minds of the people, and much of the blame for the surrender of Detroit was laid upon the war department for its failure to make adequate preparations for carrying on the war.

DOMESTIC AFFLICTION

A bright girl in one of the Wheeling public schools asked her teacher to be absent the next day on the ground that her mother had a telegram saying that company was coming. "It's my mother's half sister and her two nephews," said the pupil. "My mother doesn't see how she can go without me, those boys always get so."

Referring her to the printed list of the reasons that justify absence, the teacher asked her if her case came under any of them.

"I think it might come under this head," said the girl, pointing to the words, "Domestic Affliction." From Norman B. Mack's National Monthly.

SOCCER FOOTBALL

That "Soccer" fans are eager for the opening of the football season, was amply demonstrated by the attendance at a general meeting held in the club room, office saloon.

The Warren District league was re-organized with W. M. Sharp, chairman, and Dan Fowler, secretary, present. Four teams were represented and a good season is assured. A Rubs committee was formed the members being Eldon, Northmore, Johnson, Doyle and Fowler.

The season will be opened at the earliest convenient date with a game between the state champions, who won out at Morenci, and the rest of the Warren league.

A Morenci team will visit the district early in the season and endeavor to regain lost laurels.

The next general meeting is called for Aug. 25th 2:30 p. m. at the club room.

All Canyon Stars old and new intending to play are requested to inform G. V. Bell at the Barber shop, Brewery Gulch.

DOWN THE SCALE

A certain bride is very much in love with her husband and very willing to adjust it. She likes to sound his praises to her mother and to her girl friends. She has a number of original expressions. When her husband is good she says he is "chocolate cake three layers deep." When he is very good he is "chocolate cake four layers deep," and so on in the scale. Occasionally, however, things take a turn. The bride's mother dropped in the other day. The bride was a trifle peevish, but her mother pretended not to notice this.

"And how is John today?" was her inquiry. "Chocolate cake four layers deep?"

"No."
"Three layers deep?"
"No."
"Two layers deep?"
"No." This with a pout.
"Then what is he?"
"Dog biscuit!"—From Norman B. Mack's National Monthly.

AIR COMPETITIONS

BERLIN, Aug. 16.—Much interest is manifested in the series of air-craft competitions scheduled to begin tomorrow at Gotha, under the patronage of the Duke of Saxe-Coburg and Gotha. The competitions are in line with Germany's well-formed plans to out-distance all other European nations in the development of air-craft for military purposes. Prizes of considerable value are offered for the best results attained in aiming missiles from airships and aeroplanes and in taking photographs from flying machines.

JOHNSON GETS RECORD

FALSE IDEAS OF PERFECTION
Absurd Development of Muscle Has Little Part in Production of Perfect Athlete.

A recent portrait of a lumpy athlete, who invites others, and not without success, to try his system of physical development, shows that the false idea of physical perfection which obtained for so many years, and which demanded huge and knobby muscles of its disciples, has not yet quite died out. This type of many perfect, once useful perhaps to hang armor upon, was thought to possess the sanction of the golden age of antiquity when the lumpy Hercules came to light, to be hailed as a supreme product of the Greeks. We know it now for an example of decadent Greek taste, fit companion of the absurd and sensational Laocoon. It is taught but a type of the strong man of vaudeville with his clumsy masses of beef and his brain of a spoiled child, fit only to push his awkward dumb bells into the air, an enviable sum of achievement truly after a lifetime of work by a civilized human being. No less than strength, are speed and grace demanded of the ideal athlete, likewise a face of refinement and intelligence to tell of a brain within to comprehend art, music and literature, and the ability to plan victories either of peace or war. Look upon the Apollo Belvidere, which embodies the true dreams of health and mental and physical efficiency, with its face of exquisite beauty above a form whose lines are tranquil poetry, yet shadow forth their readiness to start into slithering vigor when the call for action comes. Even the Indian, the perfect savage, never resembled the Hercules monstrously, the emulators of which find their place in modern life so much better filled by the derrick.—New York Medical Record.

HUGH DUFFY'S WONDERFUL UP-ENDER CATCH

HUGH DUFFY was one of the greatest players baseball has ever produced. His fame rests on his remarkable record at bat, in which he has never been equaled for the number of games played. Duffy in his day figured also in some wonderful catches. Probably the greatest feat of his career from a fielding viewpoint was his great running catch of a fly ball in a game between Boston and Brooklyn in 1897. Boston in that year was in a bitter struggle with Baltimore for the pennant and so close was the race in the last half of the journey that the loss of a single game might have caused a change in the flag holder.

In this play it was necessary for Duffy to virtually stand on his head to make the catch and he performed the feat with consummate skill. Gotsch may have a copyright on his newest hold in wrestling which he has named the "up-ender," but Hugh Duffy's up-ender catch has never been paralleled in any pennant race I have ever heard of.

This remarkable performance came in a game in which great fielding was the order and Duffy was the star of them all. It cut off a sure home run and although the catch did not win the game it helped to save it.

Boston had just completed a hair-raising series with the famed Orioles in which both clubs were practically exhausted by the strain. The advantage of that heart-breaking clash lay with Boston. Only a few games remained on the schedule and only a few points separated the fatigued combatants.

Four days later the players from the Hub came to New York for a desperate last stand with the Brooklyn club, and the interest in this game, in which Duffy was a hero, centered in the possibility that Brooklyn fans rooted vigorously for their own players to down the sturdy battlers from the Hub.

Griffin brought the crowd to its feet with cheers when he came to bat in the fifth inning and drove the ball on a line toward the left field bleachers for a probable home run. With the crash of the bat Captain Duffy was after it.

It seemed impossible for any human being to catch that ball from Duffy's position, but running at top speed he dived for it as it was about to shoot into the bleachers and in doing so practically stood on his head, turned a somersault and came up with the sphere in his hand.

"Not to my dying day do I expect to see a greater catch than that spectacular bit of fielding," said a veteran baseball writer who reported the game and who is still living. "That was one of the great plays that season that won a pennant for Boston."

There's Music in Everything.
And sure there is music even in the beauty and the silent note which Cupid strikes, far sweeter than the sound of an instrument; for there is music wherever there is harmony, order or proportion; and thus far we may maintain the music of the spheres.—Sir Thomas Browne.

Two Interesting Patents.
Among recent patents which attract attention by reason of their novelty are one for making sausages without casings (a searing process) and one for an illuminated flat iron. The latter contrivance is described as containing incandescent light bulbs which serve at the same time to heat the iron and to illuminate the work which is being ironed.
